

Tips to Keep Your Gig Energy Up

www.musiciansunite.com

1. Stay hydrated
2. Eat, but nothing too heavy
3. Avoid too much alcohol
4. Set up with enough time to take a break before the show
5. Help each other so everyone shares the work load evenly
6. If possible, grab a show day nap
7. Again, stay hydrated!!

I know I've talked about this before...
BUT it doesn't appear to have sunk in!!

How tough are these things to do and how important are they to do? Not hard at all... just common sense. What would you do different if you were doing a gig in Guadalajara or P.V. or Mexico City? Would you show up at the last possible minute or worse 10 or 15 minutes after your start time?... Would you have old blue jeans on and the shirt you wore all day? Would you get on stage and start noodling or tuning?... Would you get a tequila before you got on stage?

You might do all of these things but you'd never be asked back... guaranteed!

Another thing is when special groups or shows are on I haven't seen hardly one local musician showing up! Guess what you would see?... The stage all set up, the instruments tuned and everyone set to go and starting at the advertised time! Do you know what would happen if you did that? You'd get better gigs and most of all better audiences. Why better audiences?... because they'd pay a good cover which means better money for you and no "freebie-seekers" (water drinkers and table jumpers)... the house is happy, the crowd is happy and you will be too!
