Doubt: A Parable will be on stage March 28 to April 6, 2025. Set against the backdrop of a 1960's America in the midst of political and social change, a progressive young priest's conduct comes under question by Sister Aloysius Beauvier, the school principal whose beliefs are deeply rooted in tradition.

The Box Office will be open before the opera screening of Aida on March 8, 9 and 10 from 3:00 to 4:00. It will open again on March 26 and 27 from 10:00 to noon.

You can also get your tickets by clicking the green box for online sales below.

Doubt: A Parable is a 2005 play by John Patrick Shanley that analyzes an instance of doubt and suspicion in a Catholic school in the Bronx. Set against the backdrop of a 1960s America in the midst of political and social change, a priest's conduct comes under question by Sister Aloysius Beauvier, the school principal whose beliefs are deeply rooted in tradition. As the actions and motivations of each are scrutinized and suspicion mounts, the two are drawn into a battle of wills that threatens irrevocable consequences for all involved.

The play stars Deborah Kloegman, Rob Stupple, Linda Goman and Connie Davis and is directed by Paul Kloegman.

Doubt: A Parable replaces It's Only A Play and is scheduled for March 28-April 6, 2025.

TICKETS ON SALE NOW!!

Lakeside Little Theatre had planned performances of the production of It's Only a Play as part of the season. Unfortunately, when auditions were held on January 9 and 10, there were not enough male actors available to cast the play. It was then decided that the director should focus on a different play and Doubt: A Parable was chosen. We have now received the performance license for this production and the director has cast the play with actors who auditioned in January.

About the Play:

Doubt: A Parable is a 2005 play by John Patrick Shanley that analyzes an instance of doubt and suspicion in a Catholic school in the Bronx. Set against the backdrop of a 1960's America in the midst of political and social change, a progressive priest's conduct comes under question by Sister Aloysius Beauvier, the school principal whose beliefs are deeply rooted in tradition. As the actions and motivations of each are scrutinized and suspicion mounts, the two are drawn into a battle of wills that threatens irrevocable consequences for all involved.
